- Introduction to Criticism

Course objective

This course aims to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of criticism as a theoretical and practical discipline, particularly in the fields of art, design, and architecture. By exploring historical perspectives, critical thinking methods, and the role of designers as critics, students will develop the ability to analyze and evaluate creative works with depth and clarity. Through discussions on different types of criticism, theories, and judgment processes, this course fosters a critical mindset essential for academic and professional practice in design and related fields

Course outcomes

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Define criticism and its significance in art, design, and architecture.
- Understand and analyze the contributions of ancient philosophers to critical thought.
- Differentiate between various types of art criticism, including literary, interior design, and architectural criticism.
- Apply theories of literary and art criticism to evaluate artistic and design works.
- Develop critical thinking skills to assess and interpret creative expressions effectively.
- Understand the role of judgment in criticism and how to form well-supported critiques.
- Examine the role of criticism in design studios, including its impact on the creative process and project development.
- Identify and distinguish different types of criticism in design, such as positive, negative, subjective, and objective criticism.
